

Every Friday we feature one of the garments from the magazine in a post about styling. We suggest different ways to wear the garment in question using mock-ups from Polyvore. We encourage readers to tell us what they think about these outfits via our Facebook page or Twitter, and if folks want to make their own outfits, please tweet them at us with the hashtag #twiststyle. You can find all of the Style Friday posts here.

Hello fashion friends. If you follow us on Facebook or Twitter, you might have seen that I was caught in a blizzard today and that is why this post is so terribly late. I was on a lovely getaway with some good friends near Mt Tremblant, north of Montreal. Most people go to the mountains in the winter to ski or snowboard. I did go along on a snowshoeing adventure with a little cajoling- which turned out to be pretty great- but mostly when I have a bit of time off, this is all I want to do:

That's Parade and Maroni, in case you were wondering, both patterns I am pretty wild about so far.

I digress. We are here for fashion, are we not? This one's a quickie! Last week I made some outfits for Granville, and the lovely and talented designer of the sweater in question, posted another outfit that she composed! I thought you should all see it, because it's lovely, and also because I really love it when other people get into this paper-doll fashion game thing. It's so fun, really. Take a gander at how Fiona Ellis would wear her lovely creation.

How would you wear Granville?
