

Though I hate to say it, winter is coming. I think I may have even seen a couple snowflakes the other day. At least that means the winter issue is nearly here and we'll have lots of new things to knit and plenty of indoor days to do it. The issue will be up in less than 24 hours, so I figured I'd share some behind the scenes shots today.

The whole family helps out.

How many computers can you fit on the kitchen counter? At least five.

Want to take my picture?

No, horses, I swear there are no treats in this bag.

James gets the shot.

If you can't carry all of the clothes and props, wear them.