

Subscribers to the newsletter found a little surprise in their email this morning. Late last night, we announced the release of a new pattern from Marnie MacLean, Bijou. (Not a subscriber yet? You can sign up in the left hand margin of this very page.)

We love this sweater for its stash-busting potential (it's a DK and a lace weight held together for the body, then just the lace weight for the yoke, so colour matching isn't a big deal), and we love it for the many ways it could be worn, depending on your colour choice and sleeve length: short, bright, and flirty or long, dark, and sultry, and so many other versions in between.

Visit Bijou in the Sunday Afternoon section of the magazine, or go right to the shop page, then plan your social calendar accordingly. Happy knitting!
