

It has come to my attention that a lot of people now use Ravelry to keep up with blogs. A good friend of mine, really and truly she is, never reads the Twist blog, not because she doesn't love me (!), but because it's just not on her radar when I update. Gotta fix that.

Hm. a click or two, and a few days later:

Now Twist Collective has a Ravetar on Ravelry too!

Just "friend" twistcollective, and never miss a blog post again. And don't forget to check out the Twist Collective forum for KALs and the delightful goings on as the countdown for the Spring issue has begun. It's okay: we're excited too.
