

So you fell for Connie Chang Chinchio's Timpani and you finished the knitting: now, how do you wear it?

It's an obvious choice to go with jeans as we showed in the magazine, but Timpani can also be a great topper for skirts, as long as you avoid anything that might make you look like a majorette. You can use it to bring out your sweet side, or your inner Chrissy Hyde-slash-Pink, depending on your musical currency. It's all in the mix. Keep the details to a minimum to let the sweater do most of the talking.
