

This long sleeve, pullover tunic is knit in the round from the top down. The twisted rib yoke features an unusual method of constructing the shoulders. There is a twisted rib band at the empire line, which tapers to points at the front. The twisted rib is repeated at the cuff of the sleeves, which are worked in the round, and at the hem, which is longer in the back and split at the sides. The patterning at waist and cuffs is given in chart form.
